

I'm receiving pornographic ads, and I don't know how to stop them. My server said just not to respond, but I'm getting more and more of them. Also, I get mail that isn't even addressed to me, which my server says it can't do anything about. I've tried an anti-spam program, but it didn't work that well. Something needs to be done to hold the senders accountable when they refuse to remove your address from their lists. It would help just to have it where only mail addressed directly to the sender could go through.
